ELECTRIC CITY SPARKLETS

Items of Interest and Personal Mention Caught Over the Wireless on the Streets of Anderson

Beautiful Services
 Were Held at Midnight.
 Beautiful and impressive were the services held at midnight in Grace Episcopal church. The Holy Eucharist was celebrated. In addition to the special Christmas music, the choir was vested for the first time. Then entered in procession in the church led by the Crucifer with the Processional Cross. The midnight services were preceded by an organ recital beginning at 11:30 o'clock, given by Mr. Tully of Greenwood. The Rev. C. H. Jordan, rector of the Church of the Resurrection, at Greenwood, preached the sermon at the midnight service. The attendance at the service was quite large, considering the character of the weather. Services will be held this morning at 8 o'clock and at 11 o'clock at Grace church and on St. Stephen's day, which is Saturday.

Policeman Aiken
 Is Received.
 Friends of Private and Mrs. M. S. Aiken will be pleased to learn of the death of their little 17-months old son, Lawrence Orr, which occurred at their home on Johnson street at 6 o'clock yesterday morning. The child had been ill but a short while with pneumonia. The funeral services will be held at the home Friday at 11 o'clock, and interment will be at Silver Brook cemetery.

Ginning in County
 Is Far Behind.
 Figures furnished The Intelligencer yesterday by L. A. Bolt, government agent in charge of the collection of cotton ginning statistics in this county, show that up to December 13 there had been ginned 51,561 bales of cotton in this county. The number of bales ginned for the corresponding period last year were 66,482.

Some Hogs
 Are These.
 W. P. Freeman, a farmer of Anderson county, living in Brushy Creek township, has killed two immense "porkers." In November he slaughtered one, weighing 440 pounds. This month another went the way of all good hogs into sausage, spareribs and cracklings. The second one weighed 637 pounds.

Express Office
 Did Big Business.
 Yesterday was a busy day with the employees of the local office of the Southern Express company. Throughout the day there was a great crowd gathered about the counter, many of them inquiring anxiously if their "packages" had come. A number were disappointed, but the majority received what they had gone there for.

Farmer Will Take
 His Trade Elsewhere.
 A farmer coming to town yesterday through the rain and mud declared upon arriving here that he believed hereafter he would go to Belton to do his trading, as the streets in the city of Anderson were in such a frightful condition it was too great a strain upon his stock to pull a vehicle through them. "I get along alright," he said, "until I strike the city streets and then I find it almost impossible to reach the center of town."

Was Busy Day in Treasurer's Office.
 Yesterday, was an unusually busy day with the county treasurer, scores of persons calling to pay tribute to Caesar. As the county offices in the court house will be closed until next Monday, taxpayers have but four days left in which to pay tax without penalty. As generally known, delinquents have to pay 1 per cent for the month of January, 2 per cent for February and 7 per cent for the first half of March, after which matters are turned over to the sheriff.

Making Survey of Railroad Lines.
 Principal Assistant Engineer Crunkshanks and his assistant, Mr. Flythe, have been at work for the past few days in the freight yards of the C. & W. C. railway making a survey for the lines for purposes of appraisal in accordance with an act of Congress of some time ago. Their engineers are employed by the railroad but are compensated by the government. They are well equipped for the work, having with them a private car and a kitchen car. The engineers have gone home for the holidays but will return to their work Saturday.

Beautiful Home Wedding Yesterday.
 At half past one yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Jackson, on South Main street a pretty home wedding occurred when their daughter, Mary, became the bride of Mr. Lillius Schumpert. The wedding was marked by its simplicity and informality, only a few of the nearest relatives being present, among whom was the great grand parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Bolt of Periman. The house was beautiful in its Christmas decorations of holly and mistletoe with bells and wreaths everywhere. The parlor where the ceremony was performed was particularly pretty. In one corner was a Christmas tree, with many small electric lights among the branches with long garlands of green. Just in front of this tree the sweet and solemn ceremony was performed by Rev. W. B. Hawkins of Townville. An interesting little fact in connection with this was that Mr. Hawkins married both the bride's parents, and grandparents. The wedding march was played by Miss Janette Bolt of Townville, a young lady just 13 years old. The bride wore a lovely tailored suit of dark blue with hat and gloves to match and carried a bouquet of narcissus and ferns. Immediately after the ceremony the guests were delightfully and informally entertained at a reception. Mrs. E. A. Buchanan and Mrs. E. D. Jackson, assisting Mr. and Mrs. Jackson in receiving and entertaining. Miss Lella Buchanan and Miss Lella McLees graciously presided

Turkish Warship Sunk in Most Daring Exploit of the War.

The Turkish warship Messoudieh was sunk in the Dardanelles by a British submarine commanded by Lieut.-Commander Norman B. Holbrook in the most daring exploit of the war. He sent his little vessel, the B11, of which those shown here are sister ships, through a field of mines. He dived under five rows of mines and after torpedoing the old vessel fled to safety. He was fired at often and at one time had to remain under water for nine hours.

The Messoudieh was a very old boat, having been built at Blackwall, Eng., in 1874, and reconstructed at Genoa in 1903. She was 332 feet long, 59 feet beam, and of about 10,000 tons burden. She had a speed of seventeen and a half knots, and her main battery consisted of two 9.2-inch guns in turrets and twelve 6-inch guns in battery. In the war with Greece in 1912 the Messoudieh was reported badly damaged in a naval battle in the Dardanelles. She carried a crew of 600 men.

with dolls, boats, balls, dishes, wagons, miniature horses and other animals. The little Greeks and Romans amused themselves with much the same playthings, except for the further possession of a rattle, which some wise Grecian gentleman very kindly invented for them.

We know this from the chance words of a few early writers, from the sculptures which have been saved of the different ancient nations which represent children in the act of playing—and also from the fact that toys, closely analogous to many toys of today, have been found in the tombs of the children of bygone ages—dolls, balls, tops and tiny dishes, added to which there were small warlike implements for the boys, such as javelins and bows and arrows.

In the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in New York, there is a fascinating terra-cotta boat, complete to the smallest detail. It was found in the tomb of an Egyptian boy of 4,000 years ago.

Take the doll, one of the few of the very old toys which fit into the modern scheme of playthings that teach, as girls always have and always will play with dolls because they develop and foster the birthright of every woman, mother-love. The Egyptians made dolls of earthenware, metal or stone. Sometimes arms and legs were made solid with the body sometimes separate and attached by a string. The pre-historic Peruvians had pieces of bone wrapped in cloth, a male doll being identified by the blanket over his shoulders, the female by a petticoat.

Horace makes mention of the stick horse of the Roman children. Missals of the middle ages, picture little people still astride such makeshift steeds and the ordinary riding horse of the ordinary child remained a stick with a horse head until late in the seventeenth century. One hundred years later we find horse forms with curtains around them, so that the child may run on his own legs beneath the shattering drapery, just as clowns in the circus of today. Early in the nineteenth century, rocking horses came into fashion, after which, in 1847, horses were shown at the French exposition covered with hair and very natural in form—the toy horse as we know him today.

Merry Christmas to all the college students who have come home to spend the holidays with loved ones.

ANTIQUEY OF TOYS
 Through All Ages Children Have Used Same Playthings.

Up to the present nothing with which man has had to do in the process and development of the human race, has changed as little as toys, says the Mothers' Magazine.

The Cost of a Telephone Call

Did you ever think how much it costs to give you the telephone right-of-way anywhere, at all times? Your telephone instrument, which consists of 130 different parts, is only the entrance way to your share of the vast equipment necessary in making a call.

Your line is connected with the great Bell highways, reaching every state in the union—with its poles, copper wire, cross arms and insulators in the country; its underground conduits, manholes, cable vaults and cables in the cities.

You have the use of switchboards costing upwards of $100,000,000. You enjoy the benefits of countless inventions which make possible universal telephone talk.

Your service is safeguarded by large forces of men building, testing and repairing lines. You command at all times the prompt attention of one or more operators.

How can such a costly service be provided at rates so low that all can afford it?

Only by its use upon a share-and-share-alike basis by millions of subscribers, and by the most careful economy in construction and operation. A plant so vast gives opportunity for ruinous extravagance; and judicious economy is as essential to its success as is the cooperative use of the facilities provided.

That the Bell System combines the maximum of efficiency and economy is proved by the fact that in no other land and under no other management has the telephone become such a servant of the masses.
